The discrepancies found in the post-election audit were in the following batches:

By-Mail - 5.303

- In this instance, it appears whoever performed the adjudication on one ballot may have applied judgement inconsistently when viewing the US House District race compared to the County Sheriff race. The adjudication team marked one contest as an overvote, and the other as a corrected vote. On viewing the ballot, the auditors disagreed and counted both as corrected votes.

By-Mail - 4.128

- In this instance, it appears whoever performed the adjudication on one ballot identified the voter's markings as "inconsistent." The Adjudication Guide instructs that, if a voter marks their ballot inconsistently, the adjudicators should allow the machine to tabulate without taking any further action, which resulted in the system counting "overvotes" in many contests and single votes in other contests.

  Three teams of auditors viewed this ballot, and they instead viewed some of these markings as "corrected votes." Tallying in this way resulted in an the number of votes counted being different for several candidates.
